PROSECUTOR FILES FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE AGAINST PRICE

Affidavit Made so as to Hold Young Man in Jail Pending Investigation.

GRAND JURY MEETS THURSDAY

Will Take up at Once Inquiry Into Death of William Price Yesterday.

CORONER'S VERDICT MONDAY

Undecided Whether Young Price
Will Waive a Preliminary Hearing.

Prosecutor Donald Smith this afternoon filed an affidavit against Erba Price, who is held pending the investigation into the death of his father, William Price, former city marshal and county sheriff, who died yesterday a few minutes after being struck by Erba following an argument in front of the elder Mr. Price's drug store.

The affidavit charges murder in the first degree, that Erba Price did "purposely and with premeditated malice" bring about the death of his father. It was filed before Squire James Kratzer.

The prosecutor explained that this affidavit was filed merely to hold young Price in jail. The charge is not made after considering the evidence, because the grand jury will do that. It was made first degree murder because a person may be convicted of second degree murder or voluntary manslaughter and still be charged with first degree murder. But the opposite can not take place, according to Prosecutor Smith. Once a charge of second degree murder is made, a person could not be convicted of first degree murder.

Prosecutor Smith explains that this affidavit, of course, is not the one on which Price will be tried, if he is tried. The whole thing rests with the grand jury which will convene next Thursday. Judge John D. Megee and the prosecutor had a conference this morning and it was decided the grand jury should be called then.

The September term of the circuit court begins next Monday. The grand jurors have been selected, but no date had been set for their gathering until today.

The grand jury will make a thorough investigation of the case and if it sees fit, return an indictment. In case of an indictment, young Price will be tried on that, whatever may be the charge.

At the office of Watson, Titworth & Green, attorneys for Erba Price, it was stated this afternoon that it was undecided yet whether or not a preliminary hearing before Squire Kratzer should be demanded for their client.

The young man has one or two alternatives; he may demand a preliminary or he may waive it. In case of a demand for a preliminary hearing, which the justice of the peace would have to grant, the state would have to show cause for holding the young man in jail. In that event evidence would have to be introduced and the justice would then decide whether or not young Price should be held to the grand jury.

Dr. A. G. Shauck of Arlington, county coroner, will file his verdict in the case next Monday. He did not believe it necessary to prolong the investigation since the grand jury will take up the case next Thursday and make a careful inquiry into the circumstances.

Dr. Shauck did not arrive here this morning until after ten o'clock. He expected to conclude his investigation this evening. Witnesses were examined in the county sheriff's office this afternoon. Mrs. Bert Beaver of near New Salem, who was reported to be a witness to the quarrel, testified before the coroner just after dinner.

The verdict, of course, will be based on the testimony and the conclusions reached from the autopsy which was held in the Caldwell undertaking parlors yesterday afternoon. It is not known what conditions the physicians found, the coroner preferring to withhold that until the verdict was filed.

The body of William Price was taken from the Caldwell undertaking parlors yesterday evening at five o'clock to the family residence in West Third street. The funeral will be held there Sunday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock. An effort was made to get the Rev. Allen B. Philpott, pastor of the Central Christian church, Indianapolis to preach the funeral sermon, but he could not come. The Rev. Mr. Philpott performed the ceremony at Mr. Price's last marriage. It is not known who the minister will be.

Mrs. Price was prostrated after the news of the tragedy yesterday, but today was able to go to the cemetery

L. LINK ENDORSES THE MASONIC PLANS

Believes Suggestion to Rent Ground Floor of Temple to City is Fine.

LAST CHANCE FOR RUSHVILLE

Lon Link, president of the Rush County National bank, who is spending his summer vacation at Bay View, Mich., wrote a letter which was received by A. L. Stewart today, endorsing the plan of the Masonic building committee to rebuild the Masonic temple so as to rent the whole ground floor to the city. Mr. Stewart says the auditorium would seat about 1,000 people and the offices would not be cramped. The committee will set a rental price at the special meeting of the council next Monday night. The letter follows:

"I was reading in the Republican a plan suggested by you in rebuilding the Masonic temple. I think it would be one of the best movements ever made in Rushville. As I will not be home until a week from Saturday, I want to encourage it by writing you. It looks to me that this will be the last chance Rushville will have to get a town hall in a good location, but would suggest that you reduce the offices so as to make a hall that would seat at least 800 people. Of course I know nothing of your plans. If you could arrange for a gallery it would help out some. Additional business rooms do not help a town. If yours should be desirable, others would be vacated, and vacant rooms do not speak well for towns. This day of moving pictures, opera houses do not pay. Besides this hall could be rented a good part of the year for that purpose. By making a basement under this part of the building, a floor could be sloped so that part of the building need not be so high. I hope you may be successful in your movement."

TO REORGANIZE PENSION BOARD

Local Members Receive Notice That Services Will Not be Needed
After Sept. 11.

DR. LOGAN TO BE SECRETARY

Dr. Hackleman, Retiring President,
Has Served Since 1885, Being Appointed by Cleveland.

The members of the county pension board, Drs. Frank Green, E. I. Wooden and F. G. Hackleman received word last night that the board is to be reorganized and that they would not be members after September 11. The announcement came as no surprise to the local board as it is in line with the policy of the Democratic party.

Only one member of the new board is known and that is Dr. V. H. Logan, who is to take the place of Dr. Green as secretary of the board. The letter to Dr. Green requested him to turn over all papers and belongings of the board to Dr. Logan and it is taken from this that he is to be the new secretary. Dr. Logan has not yet received official notification of his appointment.

The members of the board are appointed by the congressman of this district. Dr. Hackleman is president of the board and Dr. Wooden is treasurer. In the letter to these men no mention is made of their successors.

The retiring president of the board, Dr. Hackleman, is the oldest member in point of service. Dr. Hackleman has been a member of the Rush county pension board since 1885 and was first appointed under the first Cleveland administration. This was the first pension board that Rush county had and the other members of this board were Drs. Moffett and W. H. Smith. At that time the board was composed of two members from the party in power and one from the opposite party. This held good until about four years ago when all the members were chosen from the Republican party.

During the Harrison administration Dr. J. H. Spurrier was appointed in the place of Dr. Moffett. Dr. Hackleman was re-appointed. He has the distinction of being appointed and discharged under a Democratic administration although a Republican. Dr. Hackleman was appointed to his third term under the second Cleveland administration. At this time the board was composed of Drs. Hackleman, Homer Megee and W. H. Smith. Other members of the board have been Drs. J. C. Sexton, George Jones and Donald Kennedy of Homer.

The present board will meet once more before the time set for the ending of their terms. The local board has been expecting the action ever since June.

LOCAL SCHOOL WINS.

The Main Street Christian Bible school "stole a march" on the Christian school of Winchester, Ky., last Sunday and took every point in the contest except one and tied on it. The contest will continue eight more Sundays and the local school hopes to win.

CONCERT TONIGHT.

The Misses Frances Frazee and Norma Smith and Harold McClannahan will give a concert tonight at the Arlington Christian church.

MARRIAGE LICENSE.

A marriage license was issued yesterday afternoon to Elmer D. Smith and Miss Erma H. Gates.

GAVE RISE TO RUMOR OF FIND

Discovery of Roumanian Girl at Fair
Started Story That Catherine Winters Was Located.

REPORT IN INDIANAPOLIS

Local Correspondents Were Besieged to Know if Little Newcastle Girl Was Here.

The finding at the Rush county fair grounds late Wednesday afternoon of Mary Stankovitch, pretty sixteen-year-old Roumanian girl, gave rise to the rumor in Indianapolis yesterday that Catherine Winters, the Newcastle girl who has been missing since last March, was found here.

The rumor was given enough credence by Indianapolis newspapers that the local correspondents were called to verify the story. The police had no news of the finding of a girl answering Catherine Winters' description, and it is presumed that the finding here of the little foreigner gave rise to the Winters story.

According to a dispatch from Marion, the little Roumanian girl disappeared from her home in Chicago last April and a nation-wide search has been made for her. She was restored to her uncle by James Clifton, a Marion policeman.

Clifton saw the girl at a show at the Fairmount fair last week. She danced and told fortunes. Clifton compared the girl with a photograph and description sent out by her relatives and he wrote her father that he believed he could find the missing girl.

Mary Stankovitch said she ran away from the gypsy camp in which her family lived because she was tired of wrestling with a bear, telling fortunes and dancing to earn money for her father.

"I'm expecting to be sold to some man after my return to Chicago," said the girl. "You see men who wish to become our husbands bid for us just as you would bid for a horse. Some girls sell for as high as $1,000 to $1,500."

Charles Stankovitch, uncle of the girl, who came to Indiana from Chicago and accompanied Sergeant Clifton to this city met with a surprise when he recognized in one of the fortune tellers at the fair his wife who left him last May. He said he would file charges against the woman and a man, with whom he alleges she is touring the country.

Stankovitch wanted to prefer a charge of a serious nature against his wife here, but the officials said they could not prove the charge that he wished to make. The woman procured local counsel and prepared to fight the case, but it never came up and both people left here Friday.

DEMANDS SUPPORT MONEY

Mrs. Blanche Wolverton Files Contempt Proceedings.

Blanche B. Wolverton filed suit today against Clayton H. Wolverton, asking that he be ordered to pay support money and for contempt. The complaint states that they were divorced October 3, 1912, and that he was ordered by the court to pay her $2.50 a week for the support of their children. She alleges that he has failed to abide by the decrees of the court. It is set forth that he has not paid any money to her since April 10, 1913, and that there is now due her almost $50.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME NEAR FLINT

Mrs. G. Hoadley, Formerly Mrs. Bert
English Has Narrow Escape
When House Burns.

IS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Smoulders For Several Hours Before
Blaze in Discovered—Loses
All Belongings.

The following from a Flint, Mich., paper will be of interest here as Mrs. Hoadley, was formerly Mrs. Bert English and is well known in this city:

Mr. and Mrs. G. Hoadley had a narrow escape from death last night. Fire broke out in their home several hours after it had been struck by lightning.

The farm residence on the Pokagon road, belonging to D. N. Walker and occupied by G. Hoadley, is a total wreck as a result of fire. All household belongings were consumed.

About 9 o'clock last evening lightning struck the house, but a thorough examination failed to reveal any damage or sparks. Mr. Walker saw the lightning strike and kept watch for over an hour, fearing that fire would result, but at last, being convinced that all was safe, retired.

Near midnight, or soon after Mr. and Mrs. Hoadley had retired, they were awakened by the crackling of flames and smell of smoke.

They rushed out of doors, considering themselves lucky to save themselves.

It is supposed that a spark had lodged between the walls and after smoldering for several hours, grew into a blaze. The house is insured for $300, but the furniture is a total loss.

CARL GUNNING IS NAMED PRESIDENT

Lands Highest Office in Kappa Alpha Phi Fraternity at Terre Haute Convention.

LOGANSPOORT NEXT YEAR

Carl L. Gunning was elected national president of the Kappa Alpha Phi fraternity yesterday at the convention in Terre Haute. The election of the local boy came as a surprise as it was not generally known that he would seek the presidency. Mr. Gunning becomes president after serving a year as secretary. The other officers elected follows: Ernest Steeg, Terre Haute, vice-president; Glen Woodward, Bloomington, secretary; Carl Wagoner, Logansport, treasurer; Walter Stanley, Detroit, recorder. The convention next year will be held at Logansport.

The local chapter of the Kappa Alpha Phi is planning a celebration in honor of Gunning. It is the first time that the highest office in the fraternity has ever come to this city. The convention closed last night with the big dance.

RETURNS HOME.

Dr. J. C. Sexton, who has been on a tour to the west returned home last night. Dr. Sexton left with the Indiana Automobile Dealers tour to the Pacific coast. He left the tour at San Francisco and went for a visit with his daughter, Mrs. Crandel Green in Marshfield, Oregon.

BEST FAIR IN SEVERAL YEARS

This is General Verdict Following Close of Fifty-Seventh Annual Exhibition.

CONCESSIONS ALL LEAVE

Entries in Stock Department Above the Average—Fair Officials Busy Closing Business.

The best county fair in Rush county in years, that's the general verdict with the passing of the fifty-seventh annual exhibition here yesterday. The fair officials were busy today, especially Secretary W. L. King, in allowing claims today and settling up the business.

The fair ground little looks the place it was yesterday. By noon everything had been moved on to the next fair. Practically all of the concessions moved out last night, but a good part of the stock and race horses were not moved until this morning.

Most of the concessions went or to Shelbyville from here, because they all like to do business at the Shelby county blue ribbon fair. But the space was sold so early down at Shelbyville that many of the concessions here were crowded out and had to rearrange their plans and go to Portland. Some of the concessions, including the Hart shows, went to Crawfordsville.

The Friday crowd was about the usual size. The gate receipts indicate that the crowd may have been a little larger than the Friday crowds of the last few years. For two years previous to this the closing days of the fair have been interfered with by rain. The I. & C. hauled the usual Friday crowd, handling in all about two thousand people.

The stock parade yesterday about one o'clock concluded the awarding of premiums in the stock department. Officials of the fair say they never saw a better list of entries in all stock departments except the draft horse class. This class was not quite up to the standard.

Vacation Days Are Ending

Soon be time to think of getting the children ready for school—time to think of new clothing, of books and furnishings and a hundred and one things.

Time also to think of fall house cleaning, of getting the house in order, etc.

VISCOUNT HALDANE.

England's Lord High Chancellor to Address American Lawyers.

New York, Aug. 30.—The first lord high chancellor to leave Great Britain on a public mission since Cardinal Wolsey's time, has come to New York. Lord Haldane comes for five days and primarily to address the American Bar association at Montreal. He will return to this city Tuesday night and will sail for England at 1 a. m. Wednesday. He went to West Point today and will go thence to Albany and Montreal.

OUR MEXICAN POLICY DISPLEASES GERMANS

And They Hasten to Let Us Know About It.

Berlin, Aug. 30.—In commenting on President Wilson's message on the Mexican situation, the Frankfurt Gazette, which is often the semi-official channel through which the government makes known its views without identifying itself therewith, says:

"Are the interests of other countries quite aside from the United States, which do not directly concern us, served by this helplessness and its admission by the president of the United States? Europe silently conceded to the great North American republic the mandate to which it laid claim by virtue of the Monroe doctrine for nearly one hundred years. It is in every way certainly our affair here in the old world to see that this mandate is really carried out by the Americans."

"President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan have served the foreign policy of their country badly. We have no hesitation in speaking openly, for in the Mexican situation the American government is equally as responsible to us Europeans as to its own people. We have here the sad fruits of dilettantism of the United States in foreign politics."

Caminetti Trial Takes Recess.

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—The trial of Drew Caminetti has been adjourned until next Tuesday, when Miss Warrington will be recalled for redirect examination. She will be followed by Lola Norris.

Co-Operation Not Profitable.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 30.—The city market, grocery and meat store, a co-operative concern started by Panhandle employes, is in the hands of a receiver.

THE TAGGART MURDER TRIAL

Recorder of Brown County, His Wife and Brother the Defendants.

Nashville, Ind., Aug. 30.—The trial of Frank Taggart, recorder of Brown county, his wife, Ella Taggart, and his brother, Hannibal Taggart, charged with the murder of Norma Taggart, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Hannibal Taggart, will be called Monday. The indictments under which they are to be arraigned charge murder in the second degree.

Norma had been staying with her Uncle Frank for a year prior to her death on April 12. While her aunt and uncle were away on a visit she went to a neighbor's home, and when they returned she was forced to go with them, after saying, it is said, that her aunt had threatened to kill her. The next morning she died in convulsions.

The treatment of the girl had been investigated by the courts of this county several times before her death, and the case attracts considerable attention.

"Farm King" Arrested.

Kendallville, Ind., Aug. 30.—Chauncy Waterhouse, the "farm" king of northwestern Indiana, for the second time in three weeks, has been arrested on a charge of permitting Canada thistles to grow on his farm.

The Foresters of America, in convention in Atlantic City, N. J., decided to hold the 1915 session in San Francisco.

FINDS PIRATES IN GUISE OF MONKS

"Brothers" From Holy Mount
Athos Ex-Mutineers.

ONCE TERRORIZED COASTS.

Vanished With Cash on Russian Warship, Kniaz Potemkin, Eight Years Ago and Led Pious Lives Till Balkan War Roused Them—Odessa Policeman Discovers the Imposture.

A story as strange as any in fiction has just come to light in Odessa, Russia's principal port on the Black sea.

After eight years of immunity from the wrath of Russia the mutineers of the Russian battleship Kniaz Potemkin, who killed their officers, bombarded Odessa and for a month defied the authorities, eventually surrendering themselves to the Roumanian government and then vanishing, no one knew where, have now been discovered. For eight years eighty of these mutineers have been living as monks on holy Mount Athos, where, perched upon the heights, are twenty-one monasteries, founded by Russians, Greeks and Bulgarians in the thirteenth century.

Warlike Spirit Kindled.

For some time there had been factional quarrels among the monks. Recently 1,800 Russian monks, headed by an ex-hussar officer of the Russian army, stormed the Greek monasteries because of a difference of opinion upon certain new dogmas. These fights became so serious that the Russian government was compelled to send a ship to bring home the trouble makers.

On the arrival of the monks in Odessa they were met by a police official. Instantly he recognized in a monk's habit one of the seamen he wanted to arrest in July, 1905, for mutiny on board the Kniaz Potemkin. He continued his investigations, and to his amazement he discovered no less than eighty mutineers, all garbed as monks, among the peace breakers of the holy mount.

The mutineers have now confessed their participation in the mutiny, admitting that they surrendered to the Roumanian authorities at Costanza, on the Black sea, on condition that they should not be handed over to Russia. From that time they vanished from sight. They say they removed from the battleship her treasure and with it made their way to Mount Athos, where they entered one of the Russian monasteries. Afterward they were joined by a Russian hussar officer, whom debts had driven from St. Petersburg.

Greek Monks Conquered.

The news of the Balkan war engendered in the mutineers the idea of conquering Mount Athos for Russia, but the Greeks outwitted them by sending for help to the exarch at Constantinople, who in turn notified the Russian government. From the precipitous heights, 6,000 feet above sea level, the troublesome monks were let down in baskets and hauled over the rocks which guard the foot of the holy mount. There is no other means of embarking from the mountain.

When the identity of the monks was first established they were put in irons amid the greatest excitement. The monkish habits were stripped from them, and they were hurried away to prison pending their trial, which will probably end in banishment to the Siberian mines.

Their leader, the ex-hussar, was not on board, and it is supposed that at the last moment he made his peace with the Greek monks and was allowed to stay among them.

TOBACCO WAR AHEAD.

American Company About to Enter British Field.

A great tobacco war between the principal British and American companies may begin in London at any moment as the outcome of the threatened "invasion" of England and other European countries by the Tobacco Products Corporation of America. One of the heads of a big British concern said recently:

"I believe it is a fact that an American corporation intends to attempt to enter the English field and open up depots on a large scale in rivalry with the Imperial Tobacco company. Whether the enterprise contemplated will succeed or not is another matter. One of many factors that will have to be reckoned with is the conservatism of the English tobacco consumer."

WOMEN NOT GOOD RISKS.

Feminine Intuition Gives Death Warning, Say Insurance Officials.

Women's intuition informs them of approaching death, for which reason they seek life insurance and are undesirable risks, according to delegates at the medical section meeting of the American Life Insurance association in St. Paul.

The matter was debated without definite conclusion as to the stand to be taken. It was asserted by several speakers that spinsters are better risks than married women.

Bereaved, Loses His Voice.

The news that his wife, Mrs. Lucy Marquette, died at the Kane Summit hospital, in Kane, Pa., caused James Marquette of that town to lose his voice completely.

SECRETARY OF NAVY REVERSES EXECUTIVE

Ships of War Not Refuges for Human Derelicts.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels has written a letter to the governor of Maryland severely criticizing the action of the state's attorney of that commonwealth in giving a man accused of theft the alternative of taking his punishment in the courts or enlisting in the United States navy. The accused man elected to fight for Uncle Sam, and Secretary of the Navy Daniels now steps forward and serves notice that Uncle Sam does not want him and that he can go back and take his punishment. This step by Secretary Daniels is in keeping with his policy to make conditions more attractive and happier for the enlisted men of the navy. In his letter he says among other things:

"The navy department has made every effort to raise the standard of the enlisted personnel of the navy, and with this in view has consistently refused to authorize the enlistment of men charged with committing or having been convicted of committing a criminal offense. Such men are not fit to represent this country on board its ships, and the self-respecting men who compose the navy cannot be expected to live with men of low character in the close relations which are required on shipboard."

An American Missionary Slain.

New York, Aug. 30.—The cable has brought to the American Bible society news of the murder of the Rev. Carl Hansen of Santiago, Chili. Hansen's work was to sell Bibles to workmen in the nitrate fields of Iquique. All of the details contained in the cable were to the effect that Hansen was killed by a workman.

Deputy Marshal Shot by Negro.

Corydon, Ind., Aug. 30.—John Warren, colored, shot Sam Brengman, deputy marshal, in the breast. Brengman returned the fire and shot the negro twice in the leg. The negro escaped.

Theater Burned at Greenfield.

Greenfield, Ind., Aug. 30.—Fire destroyed the Why Not theater in the heart of the business section. The loss is about $3,000.

During the quarter ended March 31 last, 158 persons were killed and 3,628 were injured in train accidents.

DEADLY WAYSIDE COLLISION

Tearing Car's Driver Did Not Pause to Note Tragedy.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 30.—Owen Nichols, aged twenty-six, of Otterbein, with his wife, father-in-law and sister-in-law, were driving west on the Montmorenci road, when a big touring car approached from behind and knocked the light car into a ditch. Nichols's neck was broken. His wife and father-in-law, Orlando Stewart, aged fifty, were hurt internally and little Mary Stewart, aged nine, suffered a fractured collar bone. The touring car disappeared.

Horrid Charge Against Father.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 30.—In city court here fourteen-year-old Ruth Ross told that she had been ruined by her father when she was eight years old. The child said the relations with her parent have continued until the present time. The police are hunting for the father.

Royal Center Now Dry.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 30.—The three saloons which have been operating in Royal Center, have closed and with them goes the last saloon operated in Cass county outside the city of Logansport. The Royal Center saloons were voted out some time ago and the time limit has expired.

PASSENGER SHIP
FIRST IN CANAL

Panama Railroad Liner Will Have the Honor.

GOETHALS DISDAINS POMP.

With Other Officials, Without Special Ceremony, Engineering Chief Will Board Vessel on Regular Trip on Atlantic Side When All Is Ready—Oregon to Go Through Later.

Neither the battleship Oregon nor the whaler Fram is to be the first ship to go through the Panama canal when that waterway is ready for the passage of a vessel early next year. Instead, a regular passenger boat of the Panama Railroad and Steamship company leaving New York on a regular trip will be scheduled to go to Panama city and will go directly through the canal.

At Colon Colonel Goethals and other officials will be taken aboard for the first trip, but otherwise there will be no attempt to make a great display of the first passage.

Colonel Goethals himself has insisted upon this plan being followed and has put his foot down upon any suggestion of sending the Oregon through first. The Oregon may be the first of the battleships to go through, and the Fram may be the first foreign ship to use the waterway, but Colonel Goethals, never an advocate of pomp and display, believes that whatever honor is coming to any steamship belongs to the Panama railroad boats.

No Decision as Yet.

As a matter of fact, the opening of the canal will be regulated by the arrival at Colon of one of the regular boats, so that there will be no delay at the Atlantic end. It has not been decided which boat will make the trip, but the choice lies between two—the Advance and the Allianca. Whichever one is due in Colon about the time the canal is ready will be selected for the journey to the Pacific.

There is to be no official opening of the canal, to be followed by its closing for a period while more work is being done. Of course work will go on all the time, but when the Advance or the Allianca makes the trip any other boat can follow at once.

At the same time the harbors and docks at each end, the supply depots where ships of all nations can get coal, oil and food and the great repair shops—greater than any navy yard or shipyard in the world—will be practically finished, so that once the waterway is thrown open everything will be ready for any emergency, from docking and supplying the requisites of a thousand foot ship to the repairing of battleships of the navy.

The terminal facilities for the canal, now under construction, provide for a system of piers at both entrances to the waterway, with appliances, many of them never before used, for the rapid handling of cargo.

It should be understood that a large amount of the trade by way of the canal will not be through traffic. That is, ships from New York, New Orleans, Liverpool and other ports will touch at Cristobal, on the Atlantic side, unload part of their cargo and then sail to other ports on the Atlantic seaboard. Ships for the west coast of the Americas and for the orient will pick up this freight and carry it to its destination.

Great Harbor Built.

At the Atlantic entrance, where there was no natural harbor, a great harbor has been built by the construction of a mole, at right angles to the canal channel, for a distance of three-quarters of a mile out into the sea. Projecting from this mole inland will be the great terminal docks. A quay wall and two piers are being built, and space has been arranged for three more piers should the traffic demand it. The piers are 1,000 feet long and the ships between them 300 feet wide, so that two 1,000 foot ships can dock at one time without entering the canal itself.

The piers and quay walls will be equipped with cranes and modern machinery for rapid handling of cargo. The direction of the mole is such with relation to the canal and the immense breakwater, which juts out from Toro point, that it will break the force of the heavy seas, which the violent "northers" of winter pile up in Colon harbor. It is now thought that this method of construction will make unnecessary the building of an eastern breakwater, originally provided for in the plans of the canal.

TO SAVE HISTORIC STONE.

Protest Over Removal of Anne Royal's Rock From Park.

Lovers of ancient landmarks started a protest in Washington when they found that the famous stone on which Anne Royal was said to have sat and interviewed President John Quincy Adams while the head of the nation was bathing in the Potomac river had been removed to make room for improvements in Potomac park.

For several years the stone occupied the identical spot where Miss Royal sat and quizzed the president while he stood in the water up to his neck. Steps will now be taken to preserve the stone.

FIANCE'S CHARACTER IS TOLD BY WAY HE EATS.

Girls Should Watch Their Intended Husbands Eat a Peach.

"If you want to know the character of the man you intend to marry watch him eat a peach," is the advice tendered to fiancées in the Paris Figaro by Elie Daurin, a well known French writer.

To girls in love he gives the warning: "You should watch carefully at table the young man on whom your whole future will depend. If he bends over his knife and fork and finish his roast in three gulps, beware! He is not the man who will be able to submit to tender sympathy, and he is careless if he eats without enjoying what is put before him and cannot tell you the menu the minute after. It means disappointment for you. He will never appreciate the hats you wear or the style of your dresses, and you will look pretty for nothing.

"If he is immoderately fond of sweets he is of a nervous disposition and will nag. If it be cheese and roast he prefers he will be muscular and placid. If he be a bread eater at times he is fond of the country. If a lover of fine old wine he has the soul of a landed proprietor.

"The best test of your future husband is to watch him at the moment of dessert. See how he handles a peach. Does he take it distractedly or like a man in a hurry? Does he swallow it hastily? Then you say to yourself, 'He is not the husband for me.' But if he takes it slowly, tenderly, like a connoisseur who appreciates what he eats; if he does not swallow it at once, but peels it with the air of an artist and treats it with devotion, then don't hesitate to marry him as quickly as you can."

Helen Keller, Blind and Deaf, Hears Violin For First Time.

Miss Helen Keller, the blind, deaf and dumb prodigy, has heard music for the first time. With her teeth held against the bridge of a violin she caught the vibrations of various notes, and they were carried to her brain.

Professor Franz Kohler of the Oberlin conservatory, former concert master of the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra, played for Miss Keller, who is now in Petoskey, Mich. The first note was sounded on the E string of his violin. Miss Keller was astonished. She held her teeth fairly against the instrument while Kohler played strains from Saint-Saens, using both the high and low registers.

"Like the voices of singing angels," Miss Keller communicated to Miss Macy, her teacher. She was exhausted from the excitement.

Miss Macy said later that this was the first musical sound that has reached the brain of Miss Keller, despite reports of her previous knowledge of notes.

TO TEST ALIEN LAND LAW.

Wealthy Japanese Will Bring Suit Against California Statute.

The first test of the constitutionality of the California alien land law will be begun shortly in Los Angeles, Cal., by H. Taniguchi, a wealthy Japanese, according to his attorney, H. A. Chamberlin.

Taniguchi wishes to transfer 200 acres of land to fellow countrymen for agricultural purposes. Because the law provides that aliens, not eligible to naturalization, cannot become possessed of real property within the state, Taniguchi has directed Chamberlin to obtain an interpretation from the United States courts as to its constitutionality, and Chamberlin says he will carry the case to the federal supreme court if necessary.

MADAME DUPUIS
PUTS FOOT DOWN

She Will See That Harry Thaw Is Protected.

IN CONTROL OF SITUATION

As the Wife of the Magistrate Who Committed the Matteawan Fugitive, Madame Is in a Position to Tell Justice Where to Head In, and This She Does Not Hesitate to Do, and in Unmistakable Terms.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 30.—In Coat-look, five miles from here, there is a little French Canadian woman with determination. Were she to say the word, and this sounds absurd, though it's as true as the woman herself, Harry Thaw, refugee from Matteawan, who has got a whole state on its ears, might be in the hands of Canada's immigration department today and on the next day in the United States. But Mme. Dupuis has put her foot down.

Her husband is Alexis Dupuis, he who signed the faulty commitment on which Thaw is being held in Sherbrooke's jail.

Alexis, a retired green grocer, is now a justice of the peace. Having signed the commitment he has the power, according to Canada's laws, to summon the prisoner before him, determine that the papers are incorrect, and thus order the prisoner released whether the prisoner likes it or not. And all of this Justice Dupuis is willing to do, wants to do, in fact, but madame will have none of it. She said so and stamped her foot as she spoke.

No one would have questioned her authority for a moment, and least of all Alexis. Madame Dupuis spoke vehemently and at length. In the end Alexis threw out his hands and shrugged his shoulders.

"You see," said he, "I am helpless. Madame is determined, and when madame is determined what can one do?"

It sounded like a page from "The Man Who Understood Women." But it was far more realistic than that to Magistrate Dupuis. He twirled his black and gray mustache, he walked up and down the room.

"Gentlemen," he burst out as he slapped his chest majestically (this is not fiction), "I want to release Thaw, for I think he is as crazy as a—what do you call it?—ah, yes, a February hare. That is not all, no, no; I think he is a dangerous man. Besides, I am overwhelmed with mortification because the commitment is a commitment when it should be a remand. I made the error, and I should like to right it, but what can I do?"

There are only two persons in all Canada, so it is said here, who can come to the front and stop the slow grind of legal machinery that Thaw's lawyers have started for him.

They are this little magistrate, Dupuis, and the premier and attorney general of Quebec, Sir Lomer Gouin. The attorney general's office was appealed to by William T. Jerome. The appeal, according to Jerome's own statement, met with no success.

Representatives of the immigration department went to Magistrate Dupuis. They explained the situation to him and begged him to exert his peculiar powers in the predicament. Dupuis consulted his wife. When he explained her attitude the immigration authorities threatened him. They even said they would get a charge against him and secure a warrant for his arrest if he did not comply. Again there was a conference of the Dupuis family and again the justice announced that he was helpless.

Since then attorneys representing New York state have gone to Dupuis and appealed for his help. He told them the same story that he had told his first visitors, namely, that he was helpless.

Mme. Dupuis delivered herself of quite a long oration when reporters called. Part of the speech was directed at Dupuis himself, part of it was fired in quick and broken English at her visitors.

"You are going to do nothing that will hurt Harry Thaw," she said. "He is a young man to whom every woman in America owes a debt of gratitude. He rid the world of a monster whose name was White, but whose heart was black. Thaw is a splendid young man and if the men won't, the women of Canada will see to it that he is not delivered to the wolves who are pursuing him."

"But, my dear," began the magistrate, "think of my duty."

"Your first duty is to your wife and your country," interpolated Mrs. Dupuis, adding half threateningly, "if you do anything against Harry Thaw I will divorce you."

"Boston is the town of my nativity," continued Mrs. Dupuis, "and I know what conditions are in the states. Harry Thaw struck at a monstrous wrong when he killed Stanford White, and everyone should be grateful to him. New York state should have released him long ago with a commendatory pat on the back. But New York would not do it, and now we in Canada are going to see that he secures his rights."

Not he! For our hero had money enough To purchase no end of that wise legal stuff. Not to mention a bale of the mad doctor guff.

Did they shackle him, gyve him and cut short his hair And give him a seat in that businesslike chair? Not our hero! They "treated him perfectly fair."

They got him a boarding house—place rather swell— Where attendants and such fell under his spell. Our hero soon made it his private hotel.

Our hero had money. Pardon us if we seem To insist over much on that note in our theme, But money and power make a rather strong team.

Our hero grew bored. He decided one day He would leave his hotel. And why should he stay? Our hero had money. So he wandered away.

MAKE CHICKENS GROW
BY ELECTRIC STIMULUS.

Full Grown in Five Weeks Instead of Three Months.

A long succession of ingenious experiments has recently been privately made in regard to the effect of electricity upon the growth of plants and animals, and, according to the London Daily Mail, it is now possible to say that startling results have been reached in one direction.

Beyond all question young poultry respond to electric stimulus applied in a particular way with astounding rapidity. They surpass the best on record in speed of growth. They keep their health in crowded conditions, and become almost independent of season.

In the south of England on one of the biggest poultry farms in the world, experiments of this nature have just been completed. Eight hundred chickens in two equal groups were nurtured on the intensive system—that is, in flats, almost trays, one above the other. One group of 400 was treated by the electric system, and so charged were the chickens with electricity that a shock could be distinctly felt if the finger were put to the beak of a chicken.

The chickens in this 400 grew to marketable size—that is, as "petits poussins"—in five weeks, and of the 400 only six, and those weaklings in the beginning, died.

Of the other 400 nearly half died, it being late in the year for healthy growth, and the survivors took three months to reach marketable size.

This experiment was followed by other experiments in which similar, though not as striking, results were obtained. Trials on a yet larger scale are being prepared, and there is a reasonable hope that an instrument of real value in the intensive production of food has been found.

Good Roads.

Missouri has had its momentary road improvement demonstration, which is all right as far as it goes, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. But permanent good roads can not be obtained by mere spurts of interest. They cost a good deal of money and work and when secured can only be maintained by vigilance and a liberal system of support. They are worth immensely more than they cost, and this is a fact that ought to be firmly grasped. Good roads pay big dividends. The returns are not in checks distributed on certain days, but are much better. Their advantages are realized every day in the year. Their effect on land values alone is a rich reward. But they promote social comfort as well as broaden business opportunities. They save the wear and tear of animals, vehicles and harness, increase the size of loads, reduce the effort required and economize time. Nowhere is time more literally money than in a farming region, where immediate action at times counts for so much.

Such road working meets as have just occurred in this state serve to arouse the people to the necessity of adopting comprehensive plans for roads properly devised and always kept in excellent shape. Old methods have been singularly poor and wasteful. Often they have been only an evasion or fiction. Communities must make up their minds on certain facts relating to the public highways. Permanence is essential. Money must be provided sufficiently, which means liberally. Methods must be scientific and thorough. The upkeep will demand constant care and a scale of expenditure different from the old pennywise pretenses. There may be aid from counties and states, and possibly from congressional action, but each individual and neighborhood must be willing to meet a full share of the necessary expense, to face the unescapable cost. It is a question of putting up much money and getting back a great deal more, the benefits accruing all the time. Bad roads have been tolerated so long that they have become a habit, an acceptance of the policy to grin and bear it. All of which must be corrected before adequate roads can be established.

Passenger and His Trunk.

Getting yourself and your clothes to your destination at the same time has always been one of the problems of the summer tourists. Prudent people pack their wardrobes a day or two in advance, pay an extra carriage charge, and send their trunk ahead. Naturally on arriving at one's destination, one likes to have something more than night clothes and a tooth brush.

Recently some of the railroads, alleging compliance with a ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission, made the regulation that the passenger must travel with the trunk.

The inevitable result has been that baggage comes late, women must appear in hotel parlors or at the home of friends in soiled traveling clothes, and a man's suit must serve alike for the tennis court and for church. Probably a good many nimble coins have to be distributed at junction points and stations. In a time when the railroads are the subject of hostile criticism, this is not exactly the way to make friends, and at least one leading railroad has rescinded such an order.

The children of Worcester, Mass., have raised garden products this summer worth $3400, but during other seasons they have captured fruit from the neighbors amounting to much more than that.

The Japanese are tired of the complicated characters of their alphabet, and may adopt the Roman letters. This leaves only Chinese and college students using laundry check writing.

Just why the governors elected to hold their discussions in a city not provided with a major league ball team has never been satisfactorily explained.

Now the corn belt is all burned up with the drought, perhaps the government will perceive the folly of bouncing Chief Moore.

In view of the fact that there are several Bulgarians yet alive, it is hard to see how the war can be considered ended.

It is evidently against the law to settle the Thaw case legally.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

(Chicago Inter-Ocean.)

Eugene N. Foss, three times elected governor of Massachusetts as a Democrat, has returned to the Republican ranks. Progressives as well as Republican leaders in congress expect to see Theodore Roosevelt again third term candidate in 1916 and at the regular Republican primaries.

Evidently both these ambitious gentlemen, who have given such signal proof of their impatience with the Republican party, have found that when all is said and done they can not really get anywhere or do anything without it.

Governor Foss put the situation succinctly in his speech before the Essex Republican club Saturday evening. He appeared on the same platform with Congressman Gardner and Colonel Benton, Republican candidates to succeed him, addressed his hearers as "fellow Republicans," and said:

"The state and nation need the return of the Republican party to power and the Republican party is justly entitled to success, although its leaders in the past have been faithless to the pledges of the party."

The reason why these ambitious gentlemen, who in their impatience and anger have departed from the Republican party and sought to destroy it are now returning to it lies in the nature of the Republican party.

The Republican party is not merely an organized appetite for the political loaves and fishes, nor a fortuitous combination of personal ambitions allied for mutual backscratching.

The Republican party is a body of political faith held with conviction and an instinct of efficiency in the great business of government. Its bones and flesh are quiet citizens who care nothing for public offices or honors, but who believe in its principles with a faith that never fails.

These facts show how absurd is the proposition to drop the name "Republican" merely because the party has been defeated.

The Republican party will live on because it stands for American prosperity, the American opportunity and common sense efficiency in government and because men who really wish to do things in public life sooner or later learn that only through the Republican party can they get the work done.

BURGLARS TRY TO ENTER HER HOME

While Mrs. Malcolm Holmes Visits Parents Here, Robbers Arouse the Neighborhood.

THEY ARE FRIGHTENED AWAY

While Mrs. Malcolm Holmes of Connersville was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Higgs, here, an attempt was made to enter her home about two o'clock yesterday morning. The Connersville Examiner says:

Friday morning about two o'clock an attempt was made to enter the house occupied by Malcolm Holmes and wife on West Second street. The family sleeps in rooms in the second story of the residence, and early this morning they were aroused by some one trying to enter the lower part of the house. They immediately made an investigation, but were unable to locate anyone, although they heard voices in the darkness near the house a short time after they were awakened.

A search of the premises failed to find anything missing, and it is believed that the intruders were scared away before they accomplished what they intended to do. Residents in that part of town were also awakened by the barking of dogs about the time of the attempted robbery and it is thought the midnight prowlers were responsible for the uproar caused by the dogs.

DESTRUCTION OF AUTO THREATENED

While Returning From Fair Here, Lafayette Peck's Machine Catches on Fire.

FOUND FIVE MILES FROM HERE

The fine Jackson Forty touring car of Lafayette Peck of near St. Paul, came near being destroyed by fire Thursday evening about eight o'clock as it was being driven home by his son, Chester, who had been attending the Rushville fair, says the Shelbyville Democrat. The rear part of the machine was one mass of flames when discovered by the son, who happened to look back when he saw the light. He at first thought the illumination was from another car behind him. He stopped the engine and attempted to put the conflagration out with his coat and hat, but seeing that it would be impossible for him to extinguish it that way, he drove the machine for a half mile or more, it being afire all the time, until he came to a farm house where by the aid of water carried in buckets he was able to put out the blaze. The damage will reach at least two hundred dollars. The machine was not damaged to such an extent that it could not be driven home. The fire was discovered when young Peck had driven the machine about five miles out of Rushville.

The origin of the blaze is unknown and it is a mystery as to how the big machine caught on fire.

DAILY FIRE LOSS IN STATE $41,087

Total Loss in Indiana For Two Months Reaches Amazing Total of $3,163,752.

IS A TREMENDOUS WASTE

Brings Home to Every Citizen Need of Using Every Precaution to Prevent Fires.

Revised figures show that the total fire loss in Indiana, as reported to the state fire marshal from May 15 to July 31, inclusive, was $3,163,752.

This announcement made from the fire marshal's office, shows the tremendous waste suffered in Indiana by fire in a period of less than three months, and indicates a yearly loss exceeding $12,000,000 should the present rate continue.

The office of the state fire marshal began its work on May 1, and on 15 the fire marshal's 1,500 assistants through the state began reporting fires as they occurred. Up to the present time, 2,666 fires have been reported.

During the last half of May, May 15 to 31, 530 fires were reported, with a total loss of $565,364. In June there were reported 994 fires, with a loss of $683,510. July broke the record with 1,142 fires and a loss of almost $2,000,000. The exact figures, to date, are $1,914,878. This makes a total to July 31 of $3,163,752.

The average loss for each fire during May was a little more than $1,000. In July the average loss for each fire had decreased to $687. In July the average loss for each fire was practically trebled, the figure being $1,676.

During the entire period, from May 15 to July 31, the average loss for each of the 2,666 fires was $1,149.

This period, from May 15 to July 31 includes 77 days. Since there were 2,666 fires reported, the record shows an average of 34 fires for each day.

And, dividing the total loss of $3,163,752 by 77, it is found that during that period that daily fire loss of Indiana is $41,087.

"These figures will serve to bring home to the average citizen the vast importance of taking every precaution to prevent fires," said W. E. Longley, state fire marshal. "It is a fact that most fires are preventable by some method. Caution and care will prevent many losses. Proper construction of buildings will also count materially in reducing fire losses. Every day for almost three months has seen an average loss of $41,087, and no man knows whether he is going to bear part of tomorrow's losses. He has no assurance that he will be protected until he is taking every possible precaution, and likewise his neighbors. A neighbor's fire is just as dangerous, frequently, as a fire originating on your own premises. So, it is necessary that all citizens join in this common effort for safety and protection from fire."

BOY INJURED IN FALL FROM AUTO

Cyril Caron Thrown From Machine Landing Heavily on Brick Pavement.

WAS RIDING ON TOP OF CANS

Cyril Caron, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Caron, was thrown from his father's auto truck this morning at the corner of Perkins and Second streets and was painfully cut and bruised. The truck was loaded with empty ice cream cans and the boy was riding on top of the load. Jerome Caron was driving the machine. The turn from Second street into Perkins was made and when the driver pulled out to avoid hitting the machine of Dr. Will Coleman, the ice cream cans were thrown off and the boy was buried under the buckets and cans. He landed very hard on the brick pavement and for a time it was thought that he was badly hurt.

He was rendered unconscious and was carried into the office of Dr. Frank Green. The little fellow sustained a cut on the head and ear and was bruised over his body. At the time of the accident the machine was running probably ten miles an hour.

NEW KANSAS INSECT IS CHINCH BUG'S NEMESIS.

Parasite Found Which Destroys Wheat and Corn Field Pest.

A bug expert at the Kansas Agricultural college has discovered what entomologists long have sought—an insect which destroys chinch bugs. This insect makes a business of destroying chinch bug eggs by laying its own eggs inside those of the chinch bug. The parasite has been found in every wheat and corn field examined near Manhattan, Kansas. Of 3,101 chinch bug eggs collected between April 28 and June 10, 21 per cent were destroyed by the parasite. Of 116 eggs collected at Crawford, Kansas, 16 per cent were parasitized.

It is believed at the agricultural college that this is the first parasite on chinch bugs ever discovered. James W. McCulloch, assistant entomologist, who found the new insect, sent specimens to the United States department of agriculture for identification. Reporting after an incomplete examination of the chinch bug destroyer one of the experts in that department gives it as his opinion that the new insect represents not only a new species, but also a new genus. Two hundred and seventy-five of the new parasites have been bred out at the college. The length of the life cycle has been found to vary from ten to eighteen days, depending upon climatic conditions.

The college entomologists will continue investigations of the parasite and will determine how widely it is distributed in Kansas. If it proves to be present only in certain regions, and if continued experimentation shows that it is an efficient destroyer artificial distribution throughout the state will be undertaken by the agricultural college. The new parasite is particularly promising, says G. A. Dean, state entomologist at the agricultural college, because of the high percentage of parasitism in the eggs already investigated. An insect which destroys 20 per cent of its host is very efficient. Under wider distribution it is likely that these parasites will destroy a larger per cent of chinch bugs.

Many New Foods With Strange Names, but Good Taste.

Boiled dasheens, fried ptesai, entree of jubube, udo salad and breadfruit pudding will be a fair sample of the menu of the near future, according to David Fairchild, chief agricultural explorer in charge of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture.

According to Mr. Fairchild, his bureau within the last few years has experimented with more than 3,000 food products, none of which has ever before been produced in this country and many of which have never been produced before anywhere. In other words, the bureau of plant industry has out-Burbanked Burbank.

The most notable success of the bureau, Mr. Fairchild says, has been with the dasheen, which, according to the chief explorer's description, is a sort of cross between a potato, a cucumber and a Mexican hairless dog, looking a little like each.

The dasheen grows to about three times the size of a large potato. It is oblong in shape, with queer bumps here and there which might pass for caricatured legs. It is striped like a zebra and boasts a luxuriant crop of long, coarse hair.

But for all its queer appearance, Mr. Fairchild says, it can be served in many of the ways common to both white and sweet potatoes and that it tastes better than either. Also, properly tended, its yield is larger and lasts all the year round. The dasheen is now being raised extensively in the extreme south and has recently been served at several notable New York and Washington banquets.

The udo, the most successful freak vegetable after the dasheen, looks very much like asparagus. It possesses the advantage, however, of being edible either as a cooked vegetable, eaten raw as a fruit or being served as the chief ingredient of a salad.

Ptesai is a Chinese cabbage, larger than the domestic kind. Its novelty lies in the fact that it can be cooked without giving off any odor.

PRE-CANCELED STAMPS TO BE SOLD

Postmaster General Says They May be Used on All But First Class Matter.

ON AND AFTER SEPTEMBER 16

Postmaster General Burleson has signed an order which provides that pre-cancelled postage stamps may be sold to the public on and after Sept. 16. Pre-cancelled stamps have printed upon them the name of the postoffice before they are sold. Such stamps are valid for postage on second, third and fourth class mail—newspapers and magazines mailed by the public, books and other printed matter. The stamps will be recognized only at the office named on them. By the use of pre-cancelled stamps, not only will the transportation and delivery of mail bearing them be expedited greatly, but it is estimated that the government will save $250,000 a year in expense of labor in cancellation.

"I have considered carefully," said Postmaster Burleson, "the question as to whether the extension of the use of pre-cancelled stamps would result in loss to the postal revenues through the re-use or fraudulent use of such stamps. I am convinced that the loss would be negligible as compared with the great saving in expense and the increase in efficiency to be effected by the use of the stamps."

BOTTLES CAUSE FIRES.

Forest Wardens Now Bury Them When Found in Woods.

Beer and whisky bottles, carelessly thrown to the ground in timbered areas, are apt to cause forest fires, according to the opinion of E. W. Ferris, state fire warden of Washington. Mr. Ferris recently said that fire wardens had been instructed to bury all bottles they saw in order that they may not act as a concentrating medium for the sun's rays and start fires in dry leaves and moss.

"I have had many reports of fires that undoubtedly started in this manner," said Mr. Ferris, "and I do not doubt in the least the opinion that there is danger from this source. It sounds odd, but undoubtedly it is true."

GIVES SEVERAL LEGAL OPINIONS

State Board of Accounts Interprets
Law Affecting County, Township, Town and City.

REGARDS HEALTH SECRETARY

Warns Against Mayor or Any City
Official Being Interested in Any City Contract.

The state board of accounts yesterday made public several legal opinions regarding county, township and town and city affairs, which affect the interpretation of the public accounting law in every part of the state.

In one opinion the state board rules that the secretary of a town board of health must perform all duties enjoined by law for the compensation he receives under one section of the health act of 1909. No other remuneration may be collected or retained by him.

In an opinion to John Hammit, trustee of Jackson township, Jay county, the board holds that it is not unlawful for school authorities to construct sheds or other houses on school property for the housing of horses of pupils attending the township high schools. It is suggested, however, that bids should be received on the construction.

The board warns against the mayor or other officer of a city being interested directly or indirectly in any contract with the city, which he serves officially, in another opinion. In a letter to a field examiner of the state board, the department said: "You can readily see that the question of public policy as well as of statutory law is involved, and that the terms of the section referred to are broad enough to make invalid any arrangements of the kind."

Appropriations by county commissioners for the building of the bridges should be made separately in the case of each structure. "It is the opinion of the department that a lump sum appropriation for the construction of bridges is not authorized by statute," the opinion reads.

If the township advisory board makes proper appropriation the township fund may be resorted to meet expenditures for repairing roads if the road fund is exhausted, according to an opinion the board gave to a trustee in Jennings county.

That the opinion of the state board in regard to the retention of the usual per cent. for the collection of delinquent Barrett law assessments has not been changed is set out in a letter from the board to U. McMurtie, county treasurer of Grant county.

"In all cities except those of the fourth and fifth classes the per cent. where the penalty is collected, is 6 per cent. as you will observe," the letter says. "A later expression of the same session of the general assembly limits the treasurers of cities of the fourth and fifth classes to a fee of 5 per cent. for the collection of delinquent taxes."

In a letter to W. G. Million, commissioner of Carroll county, the state board said:

"We beg to advise that everything that may be necessary to keep public highways in repair and in proper sanitary condition, including the cutting of brush and mowing of weeds on the same, must be provided by the county authorities. At this time the duty falls on the county commissioners, acting as a board of turnpike directors, and the superintendent appointed by such board. When the new county highway act becomes operative after January 1, 1914 this duty falls upon the county superintendent of roads."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newkirk entertained at dinner yesterday the following guests: Miss Goldie Miller of Kokomo, Mrs. Mary Newkirk and daughter Merl of Indianapolis, Mrs. Ella Green of Bluffton, Ohio and Mrs. Charles Reader of Connersville.

The Husbands of Edith

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright by Dodd, Mead & Co.

PROLOGUE

This humorous tale, written in McCutcheon's best vein, is faultless in its morals, despite its title, and cumulative in its interest. It may be stated in strict confidence that Edith did not actually have more than one husband; consequently the gentle reader need harbor no apprehension on this score. Like all other estimable married women, Edith had only one husband, but circumstances arose through which it seemed necessary for her husband to be in two places at the same time, and how this was accomplished and what the outcome was—But wait a bit; let George Barr McCutcheon, the prince of story tellers, unfold the romance.

CHAPTER I. Husbands and Wife.

BROCK was breakfasting out of doors in the cheerful little garden of the Hotel Chatham. The sun streamed warmly upon the concrete floor of the court just beyond the row of palms and oleanders that fringed the rail against which his Herald rested, that he might read as he ran, so to speak. He was the only person having dejeuner on the "terrace," as he named it to the obsequious waiter who always attended him. Charles was the magnet that drew Brock to the Chatham, that excellent French hotel with the excellent English name. Charles was standing, alert but pensive, quite near at hand, ready to replenish the bowl with honey. Brock was especially fond of it. Brock had gone to the Chatham for years just because Charles was a fixture there. Charles spoke the most execrably picturesque English, served with a punctiliousness that savored almost of the overbearing, and boasted that he had acquired the art of making American cocktails during a five weeks' residence in the United States.

It was a lazy morning. Brock was happy. He was even interested when a porter came forth and unraveled a long roll of garden hose, with which he abruptly began to splash water upon the concrete surface of the court without regard for distance or direction. Moreover, he proceeded to water the palms, operating from a spot no less than twenty feet away, until the faithful Charles restored him to earth by means of certain subdued injunctions and less moderate gesticulations, from which it could be readily gathered that "m'sieur was eating, not bathing." Whereupon the utterly uncrushed porter splashed water at right angles, to Brock's relief. "M'sieur will pardon the boy," apologized Charles in deepest humility, taking much for granted. "It will be very warm today. Your serviette, m'sieur—it is damp. Pardon!" He flew away and back with another napkin. "Of course, m'sieur, the Chatham is not the Waldorf," he announced deprecatingly. "Parbleu," beating himself on the forehead, "I forgot! M'sieur does not like the Waldorf. Eh, bien, Paris is not New York, no."

Having sufficiently humbled Paris he withdrew into the background, rubbing his hands as if he were cleansing them of something unsightly. Brock spread one of the buttered biscuits with honey and inwardly admitted that Paris was not New York. He was a good looking chap of thirty or thereabouts, an American to the core, bright eyed, keen witted, smooth faced, virile. From boyhood's earliest days he had spent a portion of his summers in Europe. Two or three years of his life had been employed in the beaux arts, fruitful years, for Brock had not wasted his opportunities. He had gone in for architecture and building. Today he stood high among the younger men in New York, prosperous, successful and a menace to the old cry that a son of the rich cannot thrive in his father's domain. Nowadays he came to the old world for his breathing spells. He was able to combine dawdling and development without sacrificing one for the other, wherein lies the proof that his vacations were not akin to those taken by most of us.

The fortnight in Paris was to be followed by a week in St. Petersburg and a brief tour of Sweden and Norway. His stay in the gay city was drawing to a close. That very morning he expected to book for St. Petersburg, leaving in three days.

Suddenly his glance fell upon a name in the society column before him. "Roxbury Medcroft." His face lighted up with genuine pleasure. An old friend, a boon companion in bygone days was this same Medcroft, a broad minded, broad gauged young Englishman who had profited by a stay of some years in the States. They had studied together in Paris and they had toiled together in New York. This was what he read:

Mr. and Mrs. Roxbury Medcroft of London are stopping at the Ritz, en route to Vienna. Mr. Medcroft will attend the meeting of Austrian architects, to be held there next week, and, with his wife, will afterward spend a fortnight in the German Alps, the guests of the Alfred Rodneys of Seattle.

"Dear old Rox, I must look him up at once," mused Brock. "The Rodneys of Seattle? Never heard of 'em." He looked at his watch, signed his check, deposited the usual franc, acknowledged Charles' well practised smile of thanks, and pushed back his chair, his gaze traveling involuntarily toward the portals of the American bar across the court, just beyond the concierge's quarters. Simultaneously a tall figure emerged from the bar, casting eager glances in all directions—a tall figure in a checked suit, a gray cap, white reindeer gloves, high collar, and gray spats. Brock came to his feet quickly. The monocle dropped from the other's eye, and his long legs carried him eagerly toward the American.

"Medcroft—bless your heart—I was just on the point of looking you up at the Ritz. It's good to see you," Brock cried as they clasped hands.

"Of all the men and of all the times, Brock, you are the most opportune."

"I'm in a deuce of a dilemma."

exclaimed the other. "I saw that you were here and bolted my breakfast to catch you. These beastly telephones never work. Oh, I say, old man, have you finished yours?"

"Quite—but luckily I didn't have to bolt it. You're off for Vienna, I see. Sit down, Rox. Won't you have another egg and a cup of coffee? Do!"

"Thanks and no to everything you suggest. What you doing for the next half hour or so? I'm in a deuce of a dilemma and you've got to help me out of it." The Englishman looked at his watch and fumbled it nervously as he replaced it in his upper coat pocket. "That's a good fellow, Brock. You will be the ever present help in time of trouble, won't you?"

"My letter of credit is at your disposal, old man," said Brock promptly. He meant it. It readily may be seen from this that their friendship is no small item to be considered in the development of this tale.

"My dear fellow, that's the very thing I'm eager to thrust upon you—my letter of credit," exclaimed the other. "What's that?" demanded Brock. "I say, Brock, can't we go up to your rooms? Dead secret, you know. Really, old chap, I mean it. No one must get a breath of it. That's why I'm whispering. I'm not a lunatic, so don't stare like that. I'd do as much for you if the conditions were reversed."

"I dare say you would, Rox. But what the devil is it you want me to do?"

"Do I appear to be agitated?"

"Well, I should say so."

"Well, I am. You know how I loath asking a favor of any one. Besides, it's rather an extraordinary one I'm going to ask of you. Came to me in a flash this morning when I saw your name in the paper. Sort of inspiration, 'pon my word. I think Edith sees it the same as I, although I haven't had time to go into it thoroughly with her. She's ripping, you know—pluck to the very core."

Brock's face expressed bewilderment and perplexity.

"Won't you have another drink, old man?" he asked gently.

"Another? Hang it all, I haven't had one in a week! Come along. I must talk it all over with you before I introduce you to her. You must be prepared."

"Introduce me to whom?" demanded Brock, pricking up his ears. He was following Medcroft to the elevator.

"To my wife—Edith," said Medcroft, annoyed by the other's obtuseness.

"Does it require preparation for an ordeal so charming?" laughed Brock. He was recalling the fact that Medcroft had married a beautiful Philadelphia girl some years ago in London, a young lady whom he had never seen, so thoroughly expatriated had she become in consequence of almost a lifetime residence in England. He remembered now that she was rich and that he had sent her a ridiculously expensive present and a congratulatory cablegram at the time of the wedding.

The Londoner did not respond to the innocuous query. He merely stared in a preoccupied, determined manner at the succeeding etages as they slipped downward. At the fourth floor they disembarked, and Brock led the way to his rooms, overlooking the inner court. Once inside with the door closed he turned upon the Englishman.

"Now, what's up, Rox? Are you in trouble?" he demanded.

"Are we quite alone?" Medcroft glanced significantly at the transom and the half closed bathroom door. With a laugh Brock led him into the bathroom and out and then closed the transom.

"You're darned mysterious," he said, pointing to a chair near the window. Medcroft drew another close up and seated himself.

"Brock," he said, lowering his voice and leaning forward impressively, "I want you to go to Vienna in my place." Brock stared hard. "You are a god-send, old man. You're just in time to do me the greatest of favors. It's utterly impossible for me to go to Vienna as I had planned, and yet it is equally unwise for me to give up the project. You see, I've just got to be in London and Vienna at the same time."

"It will require something more than a stretch of the imagination to do that, old man. But I'm game, and my plans are such that they can be changed readily to oblige a friend. I shan't mind the trip in the least, and I'll be only too happy to help you out. Gad! I thought by your manner that you were in some frightful difficulty."

"By Jove, Brock, you're a brick!" cried Medcroft, shaking the other's hand vigorously. At the same time his face expressed considerable uncertainty and no little doubt as to the future welfare of his as yet partially divulged proposition.

"It's easy to be a brick, my boy, if it involves no more than the changing of a single letter in one's name. I'd like to attend the convention anyway," said Brock amiably.

"Well, you see, Brock," said Medcroft lamely, "I fear you don't quite appreciate the situation. I want you to pose as Roxbury Medcroft."

"You—What do you mean?"

"I thought you'd find that a facer. That's just it. You are to go to Vienna as Roxbury Medcroft, not as yourself. Ha, ha! Ripping, eh?"

"Pon my soul, Rox, you are not in earnest?"

"Never more so."

"But, my dear fellow—"

"You won't do it? That's what your tone means," in despair.

"It isn't that, and you know it. I've got nothing to lose. It's you that will have to suffer. You're known all over Europe. What will be said when the trick is discovered? Gad, man!"

"Then you will go?" with beaming eyes. "I knew it would appeal to you as an American."

"What does it all mean?"

"It's all very simple, if one looks at it from the right angle, Brock. Up to last night I was blissfully committed to the most delightful of outings, so to speak. At 10 o'clock everything was changed. Mrs. Medcroft and I sat up all night discussing the situation with the messenger—my solicitor, by the way. The Vienna trip is out of the question, so far as I am concerned. It is of vital importance that I should return to London tonight, but it is even more vitally important that the world should say that I am in Vienna. See what I mean?"

"No, I'm hanged if I do."

"What I have just heard from London makes me shudder to think of the consequences if I go on east tonight. I may as well tell you that there is a plot on foot to perpetrate a gigantic fraud against the people. The county council is to be hoodwinked out and out into moving forward certain building projects, involving millions of the people's money. Our firm has opposed a certain band of grafters, and when I left England it was pretty well settled that we had blocked their game. They have learned of my proposed absence and intend to steal a march on us while I am away. Without assuming too much credit to myself, I may say that I, your old friend, Roxbury, I am the one man who has proved the real thorn in the sides of these scoundrels. With me out of the way they feel that they can secure the adoption of all these infamous measures. My partners and the leaders on our side have sent for me to return secretly. They won't bring the matter to issue if they find that I've returned. It would be suicidal. Therefore it is necessary that we steal a march on 'em. I know the inside workings of the scheme. If I can steal back and keep under cover as an advisory chief, so to speak, we can well afford to let 'em rush the matter through, for then we can spring the coup and defeat them for good and all. But, don't you see, old man, unless they know that I've gone to Vienna they won't undertake the thing. That's why I'm asking you to go on to Vienna and pose as Roxbury Medcroft while I steal back to London and set the charge under these demmed bloodsuckers. Really, you know, it's a terribly serious matter, Brock. It means fortune and honor to me, as well as millions to the rate payers of Greater London. All you've got to do is to register at the Bristol, get interviewed by the papers, attend one or two sessions of the convention, which lasts three days, and then go off into the mountains with the Rodneys. The society reporters will do the rest."

"With the Rodneys? My dear fellow, suppose that they object to the substitution? Really, you know, it's not to be thought of."

"Deuce take it, man, the Rodneys are not to know that there has been a substitution. Perfectly simple, can't you see?"

"I'm d-d if I do!"

"What a stupid ass you are, Brock! The Rodneys have never laid eyes on me. They know of me as Edith's husband, that's all. They are to take you in as Medcroft, of course."

At this point Brock set up an emphatic remonstrance. He began by laughing his friend to scorn; then, as Medcroft persisted, went so far as to take him severely to task for the proposed imposition on the unsuspecting Rodneys, to say nothing of the trick he would play upon the convention of architects.

"I'd be recognized as an impostor," he said warmly, "and booted out of the convention. I shudder to think of what Mr. Rodney will do to me when he learns the truth. Why, Medcroft, you must be crazy. There will be dozens of architects there who know you personally or by sight. You—"

"My dear boy, if they don't see me there they can't very well recognize me, can they? If necessary you can affect an illness and stay away from the sessions altogether. Give a statement to the press from the privacy of the sickroom—regret your inability to take part in the discussions and all that, you know. Hire a nurse if necessary. You might venture to express an opinion or two on vital topics in my name. I don't care a hang what you say. I only want 'em to think I'm there. No doubt our enemies will have a spy or two hanging about to see that I am actually off for a jaunt with the Rodneys, but they will be Viennese, and they won't know me from Adam. What's the odds, so long as Edith is there to stand by you? If she's willing to assume that you are her husband—"

"Good Lord!" half shouted Brock, leaping to his feet, wide eyed. "You don't mean to say that she is—is to go to Vienna with me?"

"Emphatically yes. She's also invited. Of course she's going."

"You mean that she's going just as you are going—by proxy?" murmured Brock helplessly.

"Proxy, the devil! Pon my soul, Brock, you're downright stupid. She can't have a proxy. They know her. The Rodneys are in some way connected with hers, and all that—third cousins. If she isn't there to vouch for you, how the deuce can you expect to—"

"Medcroft, you are crazy! No one but an insane man would submit his wife to— Why, good Lord, man, think of the scandal! She won't have a shred left!"

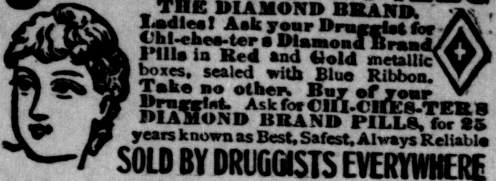

"At the proper time the matter will be explained to the Rodneys—not at first, you know—and I'll be in a position to step into your shoes before the party returns to Paris. Afterward the whole trick will be exposed to the world, and she'll be a heroine."

"I'm absolutely paralyzed!" mumbled Brock.

"Brace up, old chap. I'm going to take you around to the Ritz at once to introduce you to my wife—to your wife. I might say. She'll be waiting for us, and take my word for it, she's in for the game. She appreciates its importance. Come now, Brock, it means so little to you, and it means everything to me. You will do this for me—for us?"

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

DANES DISCARD UNIFORMS.

Socialistic Tendencies Responsible For Extreme Simplicity of Ministry.

The new Danish ministry, in session at Copenhagen, which went into office last June, is radical, with certain well defined leanings toward Socialism. The members are so democratic that they recently asked the king to be excused from the necessity of wearing the customary ministerial uniforms on official occasions. His majesty consented, and, although he will wear his own uniform in the cabinet councils, hereafter the ministers will meet in evening dress.

An exception, however, had to be made in the case of the minister of foreign affairs. When meeting foreign ministers he will make a concession and appear in uniform.

Hagenbeck Was a Hustler.

Carl Hagenbeck was the most renowned animal collector and dealer in the world. He supplied nearly all the menageries and zoos in three continents. He kept his animals in a large park at Stollingen, near Hamburg. During his last years he did not go far from home and took no risks from wild animals. In 1905 the German government asked him if he would furnish 1,000 dromedaries, provide saddles for each and transport them thousands of miles from East Africa to German Southwest Africa and have the first shipment of 300 beasts ready in three months. He said that he could. He sent his brother and other trusty men to do the buying and set sail in a vessel he had chartered and fitted up especially for the purpose. He could not find any saddle to suit him, so he invented one and had the saddlers of Hamburg make them. He had his first shipment delivered in three months, and then the rest of the thousand were furnished. The German government was so pleased with the animals, their quality and the speed of their delivery that it took another thousand of them from him.—Christian Herald.

M'DERMOTT GOES ON THE WITNESS STAND

Refers to Mulhall's Testimony As "Pure Bunk."

Washington, Aug. 30.—In his own behalf Representative Jas. T. McDermott of Illinois took the witness stand before the house lobby investigating committee, declaring to the committee that he never had known Mulhall until during the reciprocity session of 1911.

"All this about meeting him in 1909 is pure bunk," said the representative. "So is the story about meeting me Christmas week in Washington and celebrating by giving me a dinner at the Fritz Reuter hotel. I was in Chicago until after the first of the year 1911."

The witness admitted to having borrowed money from the allied liquor trades secretary, Mr. Harvey, and to the loans made him by George D. Horning, head of the pawnbrokers' lobby in Washington. These loans were explained by McDermott as of a personal character altogether, and not made with any understanding between him and the lobbyists as to friendly action on his part.

Pounding the table vigorously, McDermott denied that he had ever "sold out labor." He told the committee that he had not known Mulhall's connection with the N. A. M. during the period of their early acquaintance.

The witness referred to Mulhall as the "old guy" during most of his testimony.

ADMINISTRATION SIMPLY WAITING

No Early Developments Expected In Mexico.

NEGOTIATIONS TO DRAG ALONG

State Department Marking Time While John Lind Gets the Machinery of Diplomatic Usage Again in Motion Down in Mexico City—in the Meantime Americans Are Being Given an Opportunity to Leave the Country.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Resting at his summer home in New Hampshire is President Wilson; on the Chautauqua circuit is Secretary Bryan, while the Mexican situation, so far as the Washington end is concerned, is at a standstill. The next move will depend largely upon the judgment of John Lind, the president's special envoy. The president has left this matter entirely discretionary with Mr. Lind.

Since the negotiations with the Mexican government again have been reopened, the Wilson administration is very hopeful of a successful conclusion of their efforts. One of the interesting developments was the information contained in unofficial dispatches from Mexico City, that a reference to possible intervention was contained in the warnings telegraphed by the state department at Washington to all consular agents in Mexico. This warning, or set of instructions, was sent out after President Wilson had proclaimed his new policy of isolation toward Mexico. The warning is now being carried by couriers to all parts of Mexico, where it is inaccessible by wire.

This is the first time that the possibility of a serious consideration of the intervention question has been suggested in any official communication insofar as is known. President Wilson's message to congress went as far as possible in the other direction, but he announced that all leaders in Mexico would be held personally accountable for American lives and property. Up to this time he has not elaborated that statement. Indications are that this feature of the note of warning will stir up considerable ill-feeling in Mexico and may operate to offset the favorable effect of the president's utterances.

It is apparent also that Americans in Mexico have been taking this warning and the president's advice to withdraw from that country very seriously and are making hurried preparations to act on the president's recommendation. Within the last three weeks it is believed that 10,000 Americans have left Mexico and several thousand of those have been assisted by the government. The effect of the turmoil and chaos in Mexico on Americans and their interests is indicated impressively by the statement that two or three years ago there were 60,000 Americans in the southern republic, as compared with less than 10,000 today.

It is evident now that President Wilson expects the Mexican situation to drag along for a considerable period without any final determination as to whether the mediation plan is to be accepted or rejected. The president considers that the relations between the two governments has been improved by the more recent interchanges, but it is by no means certain that these interchanges will result in an agreement.

DISPOSITION OF ADRIANOPLE

Turks Compel Bulgaria to Reopen Negotiations.

Sofia, Aug. 30.—Bulgaria has been compelled to swallow her pride and has opened negotiations with Turkey in reference to the disposition of Adrianople. This decision was reached at a cabinet council to which the opposition leaders were invited.

It was admitted that this was the only course that could be taken that would avert a Turkish invasion of Bulgaria, which the latter country is wholly unprepared to resist.

COUNT IT BEST OF FAIR WEEK

Horsemen Believe Last Day's Speed Card Offers Better Races Than Any.

FIVE HEATS IN TWO EVENTS

They Were Anybody's Race Until the Last Heat Because Several Had a Chance.

Two of the three races of the closing day's speed card at the Rush county fair went for five heats and there are many who believe the last day's sport was the best of the week.

Friday's card did not have as many Rush county horses and drivers in it, but the interest in the events was very keen, nevertheless. The three-year-old-trot, from the field of starters, looked like it would be a good race, but the horses finished in the same order both heats.

Pet Hurley, from Harrie Jones' stable, looked like a winner when he got away with the first two heats of the 2:16 pace against a field of four starters. But he had not accounted yet for Pattie Directly, a bay mare from E. E. Post's stable at Liberty.

Pattie Directly came across directly, which was the third heat, and won it handily. Pet Hurley was not even a contender and dropped back to third place, Susie Glegg finishing second. Pattie had been moving up gradually. She finished third and first heat and second the second heat. She won the last two heats, and another horse, Price M., who looked to be tired, came up and gave her a run for the money both heats. He had finished fourth the first three heats. For this reason it looked to be anybody's race after the first two heats, Prince M. won the trot Wednesday.

The 2:20 trot was just as good a race. It was hard to tell which horse was going to cop the money. Dolly Royal looked like the blue ribbon until the second heat and then Scott Newman, who finally won the race, was better than she was on the home stretch. He took the second heat away from her by less than a length.

A horse that hadn't been counted on to get in the money because of his performances the first and second heat, stepped in and won the third heat. He had finished fourth and third the other two heats. He gave Scott Newman an awful race the fourth heat, but he was equal to the occasion. It looked like Pink Wilson would beat Newman to the wire in the last heat, but Charlie Wilson's entry had a bad time on the back stretch the first time round and broke once on the turn so that he was clear out of the running, finishing fourth. Dolly Royal, who won the first heat, came very near taking the last heat from Scott Newman.

The three-year-old trotters looked like they would give the best performance of the afternoon, but their race developed into a parade down the home stretch. They finished in the same order each heat and it looked like Peridot had all the speed bottled up. Princess, John Gowdy's bottled up. Princess, John Gowdy's entry, was picked for a winner, but could do no better than third. This is not the horse that has been winning for him this season. Lady Western is the mare that has come up from behind in two or three meetings and taken the money.

FANS ASSURED TWO GOOD GAMES

Indianapolis Specials Play Here Both Sunday and Monday—Avery And Jones to Pitch.

WON ONE GAME FROM LOCALS

Arcadians Out For Revenge For That Defeat—New Short Stop in Line Up.

The fans are assured two good games tomorrow and Monday when the Arcadians take on the fast Indianapolis Specials. The Specials have one victory to their credit over the Rushville team and to even the matter the Arcadians are going after both games. The first game between the two teams resulted in an 11 to 1 victory for the Specials. It was the worst defeat handed to the locals this year.

The fans well remember that game and the Specials need no introduction as they have defeated teams as Newcastle, Alexandria, A. B. C.'s and many other fast teams. They have practically the same line up as when they played here the first time.

The Rushville team is all set for the two games and will present the strongest line up of the year. The new men are Fred Flick, short stop and Aug, third baseman. Aug played here last Sunday and his work was satisfactory to the management and fans. The line up is as follows: Mattern, catch; Avery or Jones, pitch; Bridgeman, first; Cook, second; Aug, third; Flick, short, Pierce, left; Tompkins, center and Yazel, right.

It is not yet known who will pitch the first game of the series but both Jones and Avery will work. If Jones works tomorrow Avery will pitch the Labor Day game. As a curtain raiser to the Labor Day game the Christians and Flatrock teams of the Sunday School league will play. The Christians have one victory over the farmer boys and have hopes of repeating. The first game will be called at one o'clock and will be over in plenty of time for the big game.

The management has booked the Muncie Stars for September 7, and the Muncie team will come on a special train. The Stars have been playing great ball and the contest will be a hard one for the Rushville team. A return game may be arranged with the Muncie team. A game of considerable local interest is the Y. M. I-Connersville contest. Rushville will play Connersville soon and the fans will be able to get a line on the two teams. The Y. M. I. team plays at Connersville Sunday and Monday.

COMMISSIONERS MET.

The county commissioners were in session this afternoon, the purpose of the meeting being to let contracts for the Ed Lowden road, the Eubanks bridge and the smoke stack for the jail. The bids were opened but at a late hour this afternoon the awards had not been made.

Harry Braden, one of the most popular trainmen on the Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction line, is near death at his home in Greensburg of typhoid fever. He will be remembered here as "Happy" Braden because of his everlasting pleasant smile. He used to play left field and second base with the old Greensburg team in the olden days.

Former County Sheriff George W. Hall is sick at his home in West First street.

PROSECUTOR FILES FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE

to arrange for the burial of her husband.

Friends of the young man in jail were speculating this morning whether a recent accident in which the elder Mr. Price figured could have had any bearing on his death. Two months ago Mr. Price was thrown from a buggy on to the brick street. He suffered a severe bump on the back of his head and was unconscious for some time. It was feared then that he was suffering with concussion of the brain, but he improved fast and had completely recovered, it was thought.

Lowell Rainier, clerk in the Price drug store, says that if there was any quarrel between father and son, it began and took place on the sidewalk in front of the store. He says that he did not hear an angry word pass between the two men or any other members of the family during the morning.

Mr. Rainier declares that Erba and Birney Price were in the store some time yesterday morning, and that they were joking with their father and all of them seemed to be in the best of humor. Mrs. Will Havens, a daughter, was in the store a few minutes while the boys were there. The little daughter of Erba, and Stanley Harrell, son of Mrs. Ethel Harrell and grandson of Mr. Price, were also in the store, the clerk says. He says the children had something from the soda fountain and that feeling between all of them seemed to be the very best.

According to a dispatch from Erba's home, Fort Wayne friends are of the opinion that he was prompted to the deed by the manner in which his father is said to have treated his mother. Erba Price has been employed as an inspector at the Fort Wayne electric works. The first of this week he left for his vacation, but without telling his form where he was going other than that he was going to his old home. He was not of a quarrelsome disposition, according to his local friends.

SOME SCHOOLS TO OPEN MONDAY

Those in Richland and Posey Townships Begin, and Remainder Start Week From Monday.

INSTITUTE NEXT SATURDAY

The schools in Richland and Posey townships will be opened for the fall term next Monday. All of the other country schools will be opened a week from Monday. At the same time the Rushville public schools and those in all of the small towns of the county will begin.

Recently C. M. George, county superintendent, wrote the state superintendent, Charles A. Greathouse, concerning the course of study for the elementary grades and high schools in the county. The state superintendent replied that he would have the courses here by the time the schools opened, but the county superintendent is beginning to doubt his word because he has not yet received the outline of the courses.

Twenty teachers took the examination in the county superintendent's rooms on the third floor of the court house today. The next thing on the program for the teachers of the county is the preliminary institute which will be held in the court house assembly room next Saturday.

The Lure of the "Different"

As Exemplified In Wooltex Coats and Suits

Style is a funny thing when you analyze it. It's a bundle of contradictions.

To be "stylish" you must be "in style." And yet if everybody was dressed, in style alike, nobody would be stylish. So to be stylish you must depart from style, and be "different."

But no woman is confused by this sort of reasoning. She knows well enough when she is stylishly dressed. What she wants are garments that while like other women's in general effect, have points that distinguish her from the rest.

THAT DISTINCTION IS EXACTLY WHAT WE GIVE OUR CUSTOMERS

COATS AND SUITS

If you wish to see the tailored garments that both follow the style and lead it—that give their wearers individuality without conspicuousness—Come in and see our Wooltex models in Coats and Suits for Fall.
